

Worksheet 4.6

Look at an online news provider (such as www.guardian.co.uk). Think of a news story. Type appropriate keywords into the search engine and find out the date when the story broke and the insights and developments offered by each successive article. Record your findings using the following questions:

What was the story?

When did the story first break?

How large was the story when it broke?

When did coverage reach its peak?

Was the story approached from a variety of different angles (e.g. interviews, features, comment, and analysis)?

When did coverage die down?

For how long was this story 'news'?