Anne Bulford – Group Finance Director

Anne Bulford took up the newly created role of Group Finance Director in July 2005. Reporting directly to Chief Executive, Andy Duncan, she effectively replaced Channel 4's long serving Deputy Chief Executive and Managing Director, David Scott, who stepped down from his role in the same year.

Bulford has responsibility at board level for a number of key functions at Channel 4 including finance, commercial affairs, information systems, channel operations and legal and compliance.

Anne Bulford joined Channel 4 from the Royal Opera House where she was Director of Finance and Business Affairs from 2002. During her time there she also served as Chair of Ofcom's Audit Committee. Prior to joining the ROH she worked for three years as Finance Director for Carlton Productions.

From 1993 to 1999 she worked at the BBC, first as Head of Internal Audit and from 1996 onwards as Finance Director for BBC Production. She began her career at KPMG, where she spent 12 years, rising to become Senior Manager, overseeing a team providing audit and general advisory services to a variety of listed companies in the UK.
